

Analyzing News Trends and Consumer Behavior.

1. Introduction

On this platform, I'll conduct a series of analyses and visualizations using Python programming language, with data sourced from the "Internet News and Consumer Engagement" dataset on Kaggle. This dataset contains data on news articles published between early September to early November 2019. It's enriched by Facebook engagement data, such as the number of shares, comments, and reactions.

I'll begin by exploring the data to identify the publishers and authors who have published the most content. Following that, I'll delve into understanding the most engaging content based on user interaction metrics.

Next, I'll visualize the data using word clouds for the titles and descriptions of the articles to identify the most common words.

Finally, I'll analyze the text to identify common events or themes on days when the total engagement was higher than usual.

By combining data analysis and visualization techniques, I aim to gain deeper insights into how internet news impacts consumer behavior and engagement.

2. Dataset Information

- source_id: publisher unique identifier
- source_name: human-readable publisher name
- author: article author
- title: article headline
- description: article short description
- url: article URL from publisher website
- url_to_image: URL to main image associated with the article
- published_at: exact time and date of publishing the article
- content: unformatted content of the article truncated to 260 characters
- top_article: value indicating if article was listed as a top article on publisher website

- engagement_reaction_count: users reactions count for posts on Facebook involving article URL.
- engagement_share_count: users shares count for posts on Facebook involving article URL
- engagement_comment_count: users comments count for posts on Facebook involving article URL
- engagement_comment_plugin_count: users comments count for Facebook comment plugin on article website

3. Import Libraries

In [ ]: import pandas as pd
import numpy as np
import matplotlib.pyplot as plt
import seaborn as sns

import re
import string

4. Data Loading and Inspection

- Begin by loading the dataset into a Pandas DataFrame.
- Inspect the first few rows of the dataset to understand its structure and the type of data it contains.
- Check for any missing values or inconsistencies in the data.

In [ ]: data = open("D:\\articles_data.csv\\articles_data.csv")
data = pd.read_csv(data)
data.head()
